

ConnectPoint helps you drive efficiency and productivity by linking your existing systems for seamless interoperability.

Connect for Success

The most successful companies are those that are connected. Connected to their customers. Connected to their vendors. Connected to their own people. When your company is truly connected you get better insights into the health of your business, you have smoother and more efficient processes, and build stronger partner and customer relationships.

How to Get Connected

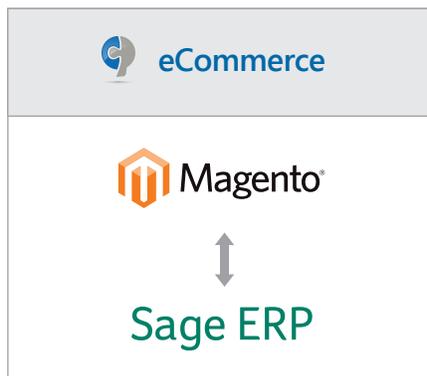

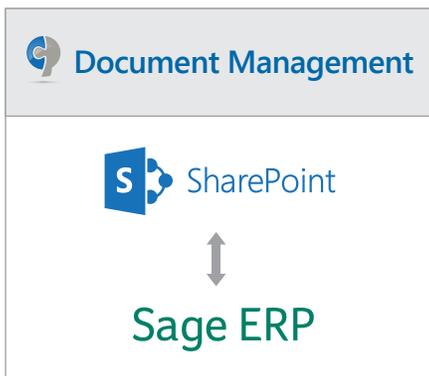

The world around us is changing. From the mobile revolution to the big data explosion to the massive growth of cloud applications, this new technology has created an enormous number of things that need connecting. Companies that have figured out how to bring all these pieces together are the ones who are winning.

Benefits of a Connected Environment:

- Enhanced automation – Integration could help automate many critical or monotonous tasks that employees would otherwise have to complete manually, thereby reducing time and errors.
- Better ROI from existing systems – Make the most of your current technology investments in ERP, CRM, ECM, HRMS, etc. by driving better automation through integration.
- Integration – When you connect applications, processes and people, you harness the power of a fully integrated environment, increasing productivity, decreasing costs, and allowing your most powerful assets, your people, to focus on higher value tasks.

Your existing systems just got a little closer.

How can your organization become a connected business?

ConnectPoint Custom

This is where you get to define the ConnectPoint solution to suit your needs. You've got islands of information, or perhaps two disparate systems that, if integrated, would drive better efficiency in your business. You define the connection, we serve up the integration. It's that simple.

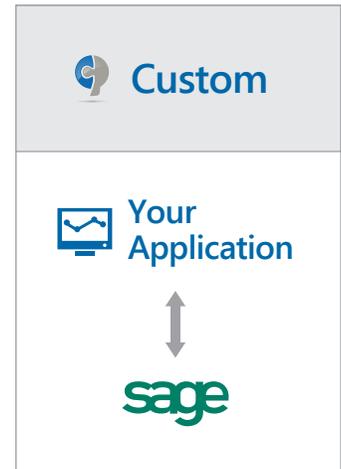

Our ConnectPoint Custom service gives you the freedom to connect what you want, when you want, whether it's on-premises or in the cloud.

ConnectPoint Custom is not a product; it's a strategic approach to building an integrated environment within your existing systems, as defined by you.

Don't scrap your existing systems just because they're not integrated!

Our goal is to understand what challenges your organization is facing if it's not operating as a connected business, and then provide you with a fully integrated environment that helps you leverage your existing technology investments. This isn't about "rip and replace"; it's about making what you've got work better for you.

With ConnectPoint Custom you have access to a team of project analysts and programming professionals who draw on years of experience as they work with you to design, develop and deploy custom integrations to help you realize your connected business goals.
